Market Review and Outlook

Review for December 2015 – GCC markets continued to tumble during the last month of 2015 as crude prices plummeted below the $40/bbbl and traded around $36/bbl, last seen during the 2008 financial crises. The S&P GCC Index continued to lose by another 2.4% during Dec'2015 and ended the year with a loss of 17.43%, while oil fell by nearly 35% during 2015. The largest loser for the month and year was Saudi market which lost by 4.5% and 17% respectively. Other notable losers included Qatar, Kuwait and Oman market with 2% to 3% drop. Selling intensified during the first half of the month, before selective year end buying helped the markets recoup some losses during the last weeks of 2015.

Outlook for Jan 2016 -Almost all of the GCC nations have announced their budgets with a common underlying theme of being a reformist led budget with certain subsidies being withdrawn in wake of lower oil revenues. Social expenditure continued to garner the major chunk while lowering the infrastructure investment, lending credence to continued low oil price outlook. As a conservative measure, we are shifting our portfolio to high dividend yield companies and whose cash flows are not impacted by any fallout from the budget of respective GCC countries.
